Official announcement and pre-order date

Apple revealed the full iPhone 17 lineup, including the iPhone 17 Pro Max, during its annual fall event. The official unveiling took place on September 9, 2025. On that same day Apple shared full details — specifications, pricing, and launch plans.

Pre-orders for iPhone 17 Pro Max began a few days later, on Friday, September 12, 2025. This is the standard pattern Apple follows: a short window between the announcement and pre-order launch.

When will iPhone 17 Pro Max be available in stores?

The official release date for the iPhone 17 Pro Max is Friday, September 19, 2025. That means from that day, the phone should become available for delivery and at authorized retailers / Apple Stores.

Depending on region and stock, some variants (for example certain colors or storage capacities) may run out quickly — particularly popular ones — so even though September 19 is the official street date, availability might vary in different countries.

Why these dates matter (and what to expect)

- By pre-ordering on September 12, you get a head start and improve your chances of receiving the phone close to the official release date.
- Because demand tends to be high at launch, certain configurations may sell out — waiting until release day might limit your choices or delay delivery a bit.
- Retail availability from September 19 means you can walk into a store (or online) and buy the iPhone 17 Pro Max outright — no need to wait for shipping.

Other iPhone 17 models: What comes together with Pro Max

The iPhone 17 Pro Max is not alone. The 2025 lineup includes the standard , a slimmer “Air” variant (sometimes seen as successor to “Plus”), and the high-end . All models follow the same timeline: announced on September 9, pre-orders from September 12, and full release on September 19.

This coordinated rollout ensures that all models are available around the same time — though, as usual, stock levels and popularity might cause certain versions (especially high-end Pro Max) to be less available.
